2014/2015 Design Trends

From Our Resident Design Expert - Hamish Singh

The industry seems to be taking a major turn in design lately. It seems on one hand you have the average customer who is embracing the traditional, natural, raw materials. On the other hand, you have the niche customer wanting one of a kind, contemporary, extravagant work spaces.

We have noticed that Oak, VG Fir and Walnut have made a huge come back in the past year and are still in high demand. Wood grain veneer slab doors with linear grains give off the industrial yet warm feel of a working kitchen. Now enter the solid colors. Greys and earth tone browns, smooth and mellow colors are just as eye catching as the polished acrylics with their bold and radiant colors. Mix and match them, anything goes these days. The old vision of uniformity has been done. Now is the time to make things pop!

People are sick of the same stark kitchens and stainless steel look. This year's trends have come on strong with cool mattes, mirror-like high gloss and timeless natural materials. So it's time to spruce up that already functional space with some cool colors and finishes.

New ideas are appearing every minute on social networks and home improvement websites. The Last few years have been pretty stale with everything being white or dark so all of you trendsetters out there go make your mark in today's industry with a one of a kind custom piece of art.

Fine Print:

Hamish's favourite shirt is a "wasabi" lime green, so his tastes are very odd and unique - definitely not normal. We would be happy to work with you to create your signature look - no matter what trends you follow.

Design is not just what it looks like and feels like. Design is how it works.
